

December 15, 1941: It has become known that in some areas Jews are transported to somewhere. They are permitted to take a little money and about 60 pounds in baggage. The Nazis are proud of their animal protection laws but the treatment they give to the Jews proves that Jews, as far as the law is concerned, are treated worse than animals.

This unfeeling, sadistic and cunning treatment against the Jews, that has lasted now several years with its final goal of eradication, is the biggest spot on the honor of Germany. They will never be able to erase these crimes.

September 16, 1942: In the last few days the Jews from this region have been removed. The families Strauss and Heinemann were taken from here. I've heard from a reliable source that all the Jews were being brought to Poland to be murdered there by SS brigades.

This cruelty is terrible. Such horror shall never be erased from the history of humanity. Our murderous government has for all times besmirched the name 'Germany.' For a decent German it is inconceivable that no one can bring down these Hitler bandits.
