

May 1, 1945: Adolf Hitler is said to be dead. The contradictory news stories are not clear as to how Hitler died. Whether his death is a definite reality or not is to be seen. There have been no reports about the corpse. Hitler's replacement, Admiral Doenitz, said in the broadcast that Hitler was dead at his battle station in his bunker in Berlin. So begins the formation of a legend.

Adolf Hitler, 'the most ingenious military leader of all times,' the all-powerful ruler over the One Thousand Year Reich which went down after only twelve years, has disappeared from the scene. And his Nazi Party, the NSDAP, has collapsed infamously. All the planning that Hitler made has come to nothing. The craziest of all political systems, the unique totalitarian state, has found its earned end. History will note for eternity that the German people were not able on their own initiative to shake off the yoke of the National Socialists. The victory of the Americans, English and Russians was a necessary occurrence to put a halt to the National Socialists' erroneous illusions and plans for world domination.
